

TOP TEN SIMPLE FASHION ACCESSORIES THAT CHANGED THE WORLD.

PURSES

Originally used to carry seeds, medicine, and religious objects, the modern purse has gained an ability to communicate status and style—sometimes putting practicality aside.

EARRINGS

Ear piercing is one of the oldest known forms of body modification. Its origin is as debatable as left or right ear, one or two holes.

T-SHIRTS

Who knew that 19th century undergarments would one day serve as cotton billboards for personal expression and brand awareness.

NECK TIES

Cravats, steinkirks and neck cloths paved the way for what we now know as the necktie. Long, short, bowed or loud, the tie says it all.

SUNGLASSES

Atlantic City boardwalk 1929, Sam Foster of Foster Grant sold the first pair of modern sunglasses.

HIGH HEELS

No other shoe has risen to the occasion of femininity, sexuality and sophistication quite like the historically debated high heel.

NECKLACES

From chokers to Sautoir, necklaces have been hanging around since the Stone Age.

BRASSIERE

Whether you have a favourite or chose to burn it, the bra has been supportive for centuries. Historians have data depicting bra-like garments worn by female athletes in 17th century BC.

FEDORAS

Namesake of the 1882 French play "Fedora" by V. Sardou, mobsters, hipsters and detectives have all been subject to the fashion stylings of the fedora.

SNEAKERS

Late 19th century, U.S. Rubber Co. developed rubber-soled, canvas-top shoes called Keds. The stepping-stone to a multi-billion dollar industry.

ANTIBODY
SIMPLIFY

20th in series